'Cohasset Cares' about keeping 'Seniors Safe'

Town launches new program

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

As temperatures drop, it's time for many to take stock of their winter preparedness, stocking up on flashlights, batteries, candles, canned goods or bottled water in case of a storm and power outage. For seniors living on their own, taking steps for personal safety is especially crucial.

Cohasset officials are lending a helping hand this winter season and beyond, developing a new program to perform

Speedy meeting

Warrant tackled in one night

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's fall Special Town Meeting took place on Monday, Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. in the Cohasset High School gymnasium.

A quorum of 100 registered voters is needed to start a Town Meeting, and this was reached by 7:17 p.m. In all, 217 voters turned out Monday night.

Town Meeting sped through articles dealing with the Fiscal Year 2015 operating budget, unpaid bills from last year, and a due diligence study to review occupying the town's new Senior Center building at 91 Sohier Street.

Most articles were adopted unanimously, with little discussion. This included Article 1, which had a few amendments to the FY15 operating budget, adding $53,000 to pay hydrant fees to the water department and $20,000 for additional costs for veterans' services. The article also included line item transfers of $5,329 for professional services and $13,320 for liability and property insurance costs.

Article 2, concerning unpaid bills, also passed unanimously. Town Meeting agreed to appropriate $57,098.95 in total to pay these prior year bills, including $2,485 for grave markers for veterans' graves; $53,000 to Cohasset Water for last year's hydrant fees; $12,576.19 to Hingham Sewer for use charges; $1,275 for a Conservation Commissions bill for environmental consultants; and $38.95 for a police uniform.

The capital improvements budget, detailed in Article 3, also passed with a unanimous vote.

School committee: 'Our schools are safe'

Officials address camera qualms

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

School officials want Cohasset students and parents to know that they are doing their utmost to keep the schools safe.

The School Committee addressed several concerns on school security measures during the Wednesday, Nov. 19 meeting.

School committee chairman Paul Ognibene said that the board discussed the schools' Lobby Guard sign-in kiosks, a new key fob access system, and security cameras during a nearly hour-long executive session prior to the public meeting.

Acknowledging that "parents have been frustrated" amid reports that the cameras in the school buildings reportedly weren't working, Ognibene said, "There are working cameras on every door we consider to be mission critical entry doors."

The school chair added that some of the schools' older cameras are no longer working, but are in the process of being replaced.

"As those legacy cameras go offline because the software is outdated, we're not replacing those; we're making the active decision to phase out the old and bring in the new," said Ognibene. "As long as the mission critical points are monitored by working cameras and being recorded, we're satisfied with that."

Ognibene said however, the board cannot disclose which cameras are or aren't working for security purposes. Overall, he and the rest of the board is "comfortable as a team" and "satisfied right now with the state of security in our buildings," adding however, "That's not to say it can't be better."

One parent in the audience, Lauren Curley, said she was upset when her 12-year-old came home with communications from a teacher indicating that there were "no cameras in Cohasset schools," and that in the event of an intruder, students were instructed to "hide in a bathroom."

Superintendent Barbara Cataldo apologized to Curley and encouraged

POLICE BEAT

On-street winter parking ban in effect

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Parking ban

The winter parking ban went into effect on Nov. 15 and runs through April 15, 2015, police said. That means no on-street parking is allowed daily between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. The ban attempts to ensure that the roads are clear for plows and sanders. Tickets are $25 for violators. If a vehicle is impeding snow removal, it will be towed, police said.

Drug kiosk

Police remind residents that the drug kiosk in the police station lobby is available 24/7 for drop offs of medications, cough syrups, vitamins and the like. No hypodermic needles are allowed. Police said this time of year with college kids coming home and lots of family around, it is a good time to get rid of outdated medications. The drop off is "anonymous" in that no one has to sign in or report what they are depositing. For more privacy, it is OK to black out the patient's name on prescription bottles. The police empty the kiosk of a regular basis and the contents are taken to Haverill where Waste Management under contract with the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) takes custody of the items and burns them, police said.

Leaf removal

Police remind residents not to blow or rake leaves into the street or onto sidewalks where the fallen leaves become a safety hazard for others. Police are receiving complaints about people not disposing of their leaves properly.

Erratic driving

Police were unable to catch up with a Mercedes that was reported as being driven erratically at around 3:12 a.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 11) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A). The caller thought the operator was possibly intoxicated but the driver could have been nodding off at that hour, police said.

Police encourage motorists to call 9-1-1 to report erratic drivers when it is safe to do so. However, if the erratic operator is traveling on Route 3A, which runs 3 miles through Cohasset, the window of time, police have to locate the suspect vehicle is limited.

Motorcycles

A Cohasset officer went to Scituate after Scituate police stopped two motorcycles that had possibly been driven erratically in Cohasset. A caller reported the motorcycles at 1:50 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 11) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway. However, it is not clear if the two motorcycles that were stopped were the same ones that were reported. The officer warned the drivers, if it was them, not to continue cutting people off.

Trash dumped

Last Friday (Nov. 14) Hingham police asked Cohasset police to go to a Cohasset address to inform the a couple that their trash had been dumped at the Nantasket Junction Train Station. Hingham found the names and address on some mail inside the trash. The wife told police she was not aware of this and would talk to her husband and call the HPD.

Warrant

Police transported a Cohasset juvenile to Quincy District Court last Friday (Nov. 14) on a warrant of apprehension from the court which is usually issued for drug or alcohol abuse.

Unlicensed

A 55-year-old Marshfield man on a TaoTao CY150 motorcycle had a surprise on Friday afternoon (Nov. 14) after he passed an unmarked Cohasset police car that ended up pulling him over.

Police said the motorcycle came up behind the detective's car on Jerusalem Road heading toward N. Main Street. At the stop sign at N. Main, the motorcycle pulled around the police car on the left, crossing the yellow centerline and then went through the stop sign before turning left on N. Main toward the village. The detective put on the blue lights and siren and pulled the motorcycle over.

Further investigation showed the operator did not have a motorcycle license. His motorcycle was towed and he is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation of a motorcycle, passing in a no-passing zone and for failure to stop at a stop sign, police said.

Shots heard

Police investigated a report of gunshots being heard from a caller in the Avalon complex on Friday. Police believe the sound may have been from hunters. They questioned others in the complex and no one else heard the shots.

Custody exchange

The police station and parking lot are often the scene of weekly custody exchanges of children between divorced or separated couples. If the non-custodial parent is late, then often the custodial parent asks police to log that information, as was the case on Sunday. Police said the court can order that children be brought to the station when being picked up by the other parent so they can keep the peace should a dispute arise.

Red Lion Inn license requests

The Red Lion Inn's manager Heinrich Lutjens recently requested, then withdrew, an extension of the restaurant's alcoholic serving hours from 1 a.m. to 2 p.m. for next Wednesday (Nov. 26).

The request was slated for the Wednesday, Nov. 19 Board of Selectmen agenda, but was withdrawn prior to the meeting.

The selectmen also received a letter from the inn's attorney, Charles Humphreys, regarding the inn's liquor license renewal. Humphreys asked the board to consider changing the conditions, which were originally created in 2000, with updates for the 2015 license.

Proposed changes include permitting alcoholic beverages on the outside porch and patio from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. from May 15 to Sept. 30; deleting a wine bar from the conditions, which does not exist; allowing the Barn to serve alcohol at private functions seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. on the second and third floor, but not to the general public; and also allowing alcohol in the Salon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and in the basement during live music performances, among other changes.

Humphreys asked the selectmen to consider scheduling the matter for a future agenda.

FIRE SAFE

regular, voluntary checks on senior citizens in the community.

The new initiative, dubbed "Cohasset Cares: Senior Safe," is a partnership of Elder Affairs, the Fire Department and Public Health Nurse, and was borne out of a grant awarded to Cohasset by the State Fire Marshal's office.

Elder Affairs Director Coral Grande said that the new program "identifies several reasons why seniors are at risk in their homes, and helps mitigate these issues and improve safety for them by supplying basic tools."

Officials, between Elder Affairs and the Cohasset Emergency Management Department, have an existing list of seniors to check on in the event of an emergency, weather or otherwise.

"We have prioritized those seniors most at risk in Cohasset that we are aware of," Grande explained in a September departmental letter.

Starting that month, members of the fire and Elder Affairs departments, along with Town Nurse Mary Goodwin, began making home visits "to those seniors in our community who can most benefit from assistance through this program," said Grande. The visits will continue into the rest of fall and winter.

During a home check, a senior's home can be outfitted with smoke and CO detectors as well as bathmats, batteries, flashlights, and other items that can help "create a safer living environment" for seniors, said Firefighter Lieutenant Rob Forde.

Forde has been instrumental in bringing this initiative to life along with Fire Chief Robert Silvia, leading the charge on home checks and smoke detector installations.

Grande said the town is "so fortunate" to have Forde working on this initiative. "He is the best possible choice due to his organization, his team-player attitude and his natural ability to connect with seniors and their needs.

"He has an innate ability to zero in on what seniors need in their homes to keep them safe, he immediately puts them at ease, and instills confidence that any improvements needed will be done competently and in a timely manner," said Grande.

Another Cohasset resident joining in the Cohasset Cares program is Bill Burnett, Director of the Cohasset Triathlon. Burnett said that Chief Silvia recently told him about the program.

"In our commitment to give back to the town, is matching the grant from the state to help Chief Silvia launch and continue this significant program for our elderly citizens here in town," said Burnett.

Prior to installing detectors and bringing other safety items to homes, Forde said that first, he and the other officials will make an "introductory" visit to seniors to inspect the house and let them know which items are needed.

"We have a whole checklist we put together," said Forde, asking seniors, "What makes your life easier?"

They also look out for loose banisters or broken staircases, or other issues that present safety hazards in a home.

On one recent visit, Forde bonded with resident Mary Edmunds, 97. He described her as a "firecracker, sharp as a tack," a former nurse at Quincy Hospital who "doesn't look a day over 70."

Edmunds and Forde bonded during the smoke detector installation, so much so that Forde ended up giving Edmunds his red duffel bag, where he stashes his gear. He pointed out to Edmunds that it had his name written on it in permanent marker, and wondered if she still wanted it.

"Even better," Edmunds said to Forde.

The home visits "are completely not typical formal inspections, rather they are intended to make these individuals safer in their homes and provide them peace of mind," said Forde.

Forde said that he hopes the town can reach out to seniors who aren't on the current checklist, but are willing to undergo the home checks.

"As long as we leave the house in a safer condition than when we went in — mission accomplished," said Forde.

'Cohasset Cares' program identifies safety issues in seniors' homes:

- Inadequate or non-performing smoke alarms (batteries)
- No CO2 detectors on site
- Inadequate lighting in rooms and hallways at night
- Dangerous and inappropriate use of extension cords
- Slippery bathtubs
- No current File of Life
- No oven mitts for heated food preparation
- No flashlights (no current or performing batteries)
- Outdated light bulbs

her to schedule a meeting with Cohasset Middle-High School principal Carolyn Connolly to discuss and rectify the situation.

Curley said that despite the school board's reassurance about the buildings' security, she is still concerned about the times when the school doors are "wide open," and vulnerable to vandalism or more dangerous acts.

"We don't want to be another Sandy Hook," said Curley.

Ognibene said that the Middle-High School doors are only open during "rush hours," and that's a decision the board made as a team. At other points, entrance to all three school buildings will be monitored by the Lobby Guard system.

The Middle-High School's Lobby Guard is up and running, currently at its "phase one" basic capacity with a sign-in and badge system; in the future, Ognibene said the school could implement phase two and require criminal background checks. The schematics of this are still being reviewed, he said, since this would require monitoring the data from within the school.

Meanwhile, Lobby Guards are being installed in both the Deer Hill and Osgood elementary schools, although they will be located inside at the check-in desks, since neither of those schools have double doors and viewing windows, like the Middle-High School does.

Ognibene acknowledged that these are "less optimal locations," however the schools are limited since the lobbies have not been set up to accommodate the new kiosks. Outfitting the lobbies with new entry systems will be another capital expense, which the school board could look into for the next capital budget cycle in the spring.

While "putting them in a sub-par location" is not ideal, it's better than the alternative, said Ognibene. "In the meantime, do we leave them in the boxes? No, people don't want that."

Another parent in the audience, Patty Gillis, wanted to know what happened with grant money the school district received from the District Attorney's office in 2012. She cited a newspaper article that at the time reported that D.A. Michael Morrissey had provided money for key fobs for all of the districts in the area; Gillis wondered how and when that money was expended.

Ognibene said that School Business Manager Dave DeGennaro could provide an update on the sources and funds related to the key fobs; Gillis said that Advisory Committee chairman Peter Pescatore "has all of that."

Cataldo responded that Pescatore "doesn't know what we've spent; he only has the money allotted."

Ognibene said that the school board is also working on a "clear communications policy," which will be discussed at the next meeting, to clarify where people can get their answers. "People should be able to talk to people in an open way at the right levels at the right time."

The committee read two other policies Wednesday night, which will be voted on at the next meeting: a visitors' policy requiring sign-ins and a camera policy indicating that there are cameras located "throughout the district," installed in public areas such as school grounds, athletic areas, "large gathering places," lobbies and exit and entryways.

One parent in the audience said that while she understands the need for more secure sign-ins, she wonders if some exceptions can ever be made – such as when a parent is dropping off a lunch or textbook for their child.

"It's frustrating," she said of her recent Lobby Guard encounter. "It's about a ten-minute process, and I was just trying to drop off a lunch."

Cataldo said that eventually, the entrances could have something like a banker's drawer to drop off items, but this is something currently under review and would be another capital expense.

Ognibene said there must be a "common sense" temporary solution that can be agreed upon in the near future. The school board had a goal to have all of the Lobby Guard kiosks installed and operational by the end of the calendar year, but it looks like all will be in place by Thanksgiving, said Ognibene.

Sarah Sweeney, who was in the audience, wondered if any professional security consultants had been hired to evaluate the school buildings. Ognibene said that Acting Police Chief William Quigley conducted an assessment and determined that the schools are safe.

Cataldo added that Quigley is hoping to bring in a school resources officer, noting that Cohasset is the only South Shore district that does not have one in place. The superintendent said that she is meeting with Quigley this week to discuss the possibility.

Gillis said that her husband, who owns a technology company, has offered to help the schools with these measures several times over the past two years. Ognibene said that the board should follow up on this.

For now, the school board chair wanted to be clear that the schools are indeed a safe place.

"Anything can happen anywhere, but we're blessed to live in a safe community," said Ognibene. "We can always do more to create an enhanced environment, yes."

AROUND TOWN

Thanksgiving service is Wednesday

Thankful

Hi Cohasset, hope you are all doing well and getting ready for a week filled with gratitude, family, friends and thanks. It is always such a tricky time to transition into, from Halloween, the warmth of early Fall, to the cool (sometimes cold, brrrr) days of this past week to the holidays and all the craziness that comes with it all. Please take a few moments next week to remember all that we have to be thankful for, look around and remember too that so many are missing loved ones, may need a friendly smile, hug or, just someone to be there without a word being said.

Another way to help and share too at the holidays is to bring a donation of canned goods, food items, personal hygiene supplies or other items to local food pantries. It is such a good feeling to know that a difference has been made in any way you can...Happy Thanksgiving to all.

Jingle Bells!

The South Shore Community Center will be holding the Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov 28th kicking off at 2 p.m., starting at Cohasset Harbor where Santa, Mrs. Claus and the Elves will arrive by Lobster Boat, Santa will pass out jingle bells and everyone will follow Santa as he rides to the SSCC by hayride escorted by the Cohasset Fire Truck. This is such a wonderful way to see and welcome Santa into town and enjoy a beautiful tradition of Cohasset. For all the details, see page B11 in this week's paper.

Pies!

Hmmm....need dessert for your Thanksgiving dinner? The youth group at the Second Congregational Church is making pies to sell. The proceeds are to benefit two organizations: Lakota Kidz and the Crohn's & Colitis Foundation. They are offering Apple, Pumpkin, Pecan, and Chocolate Silk (with or without nuts) pies. Call 781-383-1422 by Saturday noon for information and to order pies. Pick up is at 11 a.m. on Sunday (Nov. 23) at the church. There will be a few extras, first come-first served.

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Thanksgiving service

Another bit of news from the church is to let us all know that an open, inter-faith Thanksgiving service will be held Wednesday, Nov. 26, at 7 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church. It will be a family friendly service. "Squeak" (Rev. Ritts' monkey puppet) would like the children to bring one of their own stuffed animals for which they are thankful. There will be a brief children's message along that theme. To help express the feeling of gratitude, several traditional Thanksgiving hymns will be included in the service. A special offering will be taken to benefit Wellspring in Hull and Oxfam International. All are invited to come!

LIFE AT CHS

A lot happening on sports front

Their parents proudly beamed for their children as they grouped together for photos. The whole student body wishes them good luck next year in their various sports.

As the winter weather graces us with its presence in the form of chapped lips and 20-degree winds, only one thing can be certain: Thanksgiving is quickly approaching. The chill in the air not only marks the beginning of the holiday season, but of the festivities that CHS provides for students the week leading up to Thanksgiving break.

Specifically, Powderpuff has been a topic of discussion for the past couple weeks. However, the climax of the debate occurred recently as the Spinnaker staff prepares a SpinSheet highlighting the senior players and coaches. Included will be biographies, strategies, junior "friends," and even a fall sports season wrap-up. Infamous Coach A will even include an article about the football season and upcoming MIAA D6 State Semi-Final game against Cathedral at Cawley Stadium in Lowell this Saturday morning.

In other sports news, boys' soccer played a valiant game on Sunday, losing to Archbishop by one goal. The whole of CHS is extremely proud of the team as well as the other fall sports teams' successes. Many of the senior class could not have asked for better seasons to end their high school fall sports career. Great job Skippers!

ASHLEY CURRAN

This past week, Skipper fans across the grades gathered in the senior cafeteria to witness our top athletes sign their letters of commitment to various Division I colleges. Their parents proudly beamed for their children as they grouped together for photos. The whole student body wishes them good luck next year in their various sports.

Although my trypanophobia will ashamedly keep me in class, other brave students should certainly help an amazing cause by donating blood next Tuesday during the school day. Organized by the student council in the school gym, the annual blood drive at CHS allows students and faculty to give blood to help others who may need it. The Red Cross will be at the school throughout the day to collect blood.

Finally, in Cohasset High news, our super talented actors and actresses have been tirelessly rehearsing the production Guys and Dolls. They plan to perform for the community in the beginning of December. The gift that CHS drama students have for their craft will for sure transport audiences back to the Depression-era throughout the performance.

Overall the high school is buzzing with the excitement that the impending holiday season brings which is apparent in student enthusiasm for various projects.

COHASSET HISTORICAL SOCIETY

"Dressing for Downton" will feature garments worn during the same time period as the television series. COURTESY PHOTO

Adopt a dress, preserve a piece of history

In January, the Cohasset Historical Society will welcome the return of "Downton Abbey" with an exhibit of its own. "Dressing for Downton" will feature garments worn during the same time period as the television series (1912 to 1925) and draw parallels between Downton's English nobility and Cohasset's well-heeled summer residents. The exhibit includes many pieces never displayed before.

True to its mission of preserving history for future generations, the Cohasset Historical Society, which has more than 3,500 cataloged items in its textile collection, wants to restore these historical gems to their original beauty. From now until January, supporters can "Adopt-a-Gown" for conservation. The society is working with Scituate conservator Marie Schlag of The Studio For Textile Conservation to bring 25 garments back to their original glory. There are pieces for every budget, ranging from simple fixes of $35 to major restoration at $950. A special afternoon tea will be held on Sunday, Jan. 25 for all who adopt a dress (and a guest) allowing for an intimate look at the restored garments.

If interested in adopting one of these garments, contact the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 or send an email to: cohassethistory@yahoo.com for more information.

GIMME SHELTER

Simba is a take-charge guy

By Casey Fredette

His size is equal to his overabundant personality. Closing in on 15 pounds, Simba is not exactly petite in size or disposition.

When it comes to people, Simba is serious about being noticed. His mighty size is only dwarfed by his desire for adoration. COURTESY PHOTO

Simba is determined to be the king of his own jungle. At 4-years-old, this alpha cat is ready to settle down and rule over his new permanent home. This is one cat who is sick of change, and he is not shy to let you know his feelings. An extremely outgoing cat, Simba insists on taking charge. His size is equal to his overabundant personality. Closing in on 15 pounds, Simba is not exactly petite in size or disposition. When Simba arrived at Hull Seaside he couldn't have expected he would have to call it home for six months. After all, shelters are designed to be temporary homes to animals in need. Regrettably, Simba has been his own worst enemy; his starvation for attention leads him to showing poorly to potential adopters. It's hard to blame a loving, wonderful, handsome creature such as this for just wanting basic happiness.

As a cat who is convinced the world is what he says it is, he's not one to quickly adapt to having his world turned upside down. After 4-years his former owner claimed their allergies were too much to keep him any longer. Much to his dismay, he was brought into the shelter and placed into one of our community cat rooms. Once there, he set about regaining his momentarily lost control. As a take-charge spirit, Simba is not pleased to be surrounded by strange, independent roommates. When it comes to people, Simba is serious about being noticed. His mighty size is only dwarfed by his desire for adoration. Simba needs a home where he can move and stretch out. He needs a home where he is the sole cat; able to rule over his family and where his future is secured. Simba just needs the right family to come along and see past all his nervous excitement, to the wonderful cat he is.

Interested in giving Simba the dependability he deserves? Visit our website www.hsar.org. There you can read about our shelter and animals. You can also link to Petfinder, and see all of our available animals. Need more information on Simba or our other resident cats and kittens? Call Judy, adoption -coordinator at 781-534-4902. Judy can answer your questions; tell you more about the shelter, our in-house animals as well as our fostered cats and help match you with the animal best suited to your life.

Our monthly Spay Day will be Monday, Nov. 24th. If you're interested in having your cat or kitten altered by the Animal Rescue League's Spay Waggin', call Casey, Shelter Manager, at 781-925-3121 or email Hsar@verizon.net to reserve a spot. Spay Day appointments are scheduled on a first come, first serve basis so book yours now before it is filled to capacity.

Casey Fredette is the shelter manager at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue.

OUR VIEW

Hello, Austin

Unless there is breaking news, we cannot accept any submissions for the paper on Thursday.

Even we are surprised when we "send" our pages to our Design House based in Austin, Texas and the Cohasset Mariner miraculously comes out, looking good! Recently our production center was relocated to Austin – so your hometown paper is no longer laid out in Marshfield, Mass. but some 1,961 miles away.

Editors work off a "workbench" on our computers where we insert the stories, write the headlines and attach photos. Once complete, we indicate the page number and priority and voila!, the pages are designed and assembled by graphic designers in Austin.

Then those pages are sent electronically back to our press in Auburn, Mass. Trucks arrive in the wee hours of Friday morning to be loaded up with Mariners for the trip to the Cohasset Post Office.

With these advancements and efficiencies, however, come tighter deadlines due to the large number of Gatehouse Media newspapers processed through the new Design House. (Gatehouse is our parent company).

Therefore it is critical that we receive copy and photos by noon, Wednesday at the latest. Earlier is always better! Also — and this comes with a big please — send us your final version! We have been receiving numerous rewrites and edits from our contributors after we have processed the submission. These changes add to our workload and in those instances that arrive close to or after deadline, we have had to go with the original version.

Please note: Unless there is breaking news, we cannot accept any submissions for the paper on Thursday. On Thursday mornings we are hard at work sending our stories and photos to Design House — by this time, all the stories and photos are in the system, ready to go.

Many readers think that because we come out on Friday — the Mariner is printed just a few minutes before the Post Office and we can insert submissions right up until then. That is not the case and late submissions will have to wait until next week for print. However, we realize that news can "break" at any time and we can post updates and breaking stories online (wickedlocalcohasset.com) 24/7. So if you miss the paper's deadline, send your news item along and we will put it online.

Now for next week: next week is a short week due to the Thanksgiving Day holiday, so in effect we "lose" a day in terms of submissions to the Cohasset Mariner. That means that all copy and news items for the paper must arrive by noon, Tuesday of next week. Again, earlier is better!

Although we will go to press a day early on Wednesday next week, we will still arrive in your mailboxes and on the newsstands on Friday.

The Cohasset Mariner is a big, successful paper — thanks to the support of all our readers! We could not do this without you. We want to continue to be welcoming in terms of reader submissions. If we can work together to meet our deadlines — we will continue to have a great relationship.

Open House welcomed more than 200

By Marita Carpenter

We now have a short road ahead of us to complete the picture and bring Cohasset's seniors to a state-of-the-art facility designed and built for them. Keep sharing with your friends and neighbors the reasons why you are supporting Cohasset's seniors.

This past Sunday the Social Service League of Cohasset held its first Open House in the New Cohasset Senior Center. We welcomed over 200 members of the community to 91 Sohier St. and it warmed my heart to have the building bustling with a joyful crowd. Towards the end of the Open House I had the pleasure of greeting Betts Murray. In 2008, Betts' father, the late Davis C. Howes, Esquire, selected the League to become the beneficiary of the Mary Hooper Trust. The Hooper Endowment became the source of the League's $2 million investment into the Cohasset Senior Center. As I approached Betts, she raised her arms into the air and with tears in her eyes, exclaimed "Wow! Wow! Wow!"

That sentiment perfectly sums up where we are at right now. Construction is now complete. Fundraising is going strong with over $1.2 million in commitments from the community. Cohasset has been responding to our request for help to close out the capital campaign. Checks from $50 to $25,000 are rolling in from delighted residents excited to be part of the future home of Cohasset Elder Affairs. Supporters of our strong and growing senior community showed up in large numbers to support Article 6 at Special Town Meeting.

I want to thank all of the individuals who stood by my side and made this dream become a reality. SSL Board of Directors: Sandra Halverson, Jeff Steele, Christine Murphy, Maria Mills, Stefenie Thieleman, Kim Revoir and Helen Lieb. Senior Center Building Committee: Glenn Pratt, Bob Hoyler, Wayne Sawchuk, Wayne Halverson and George McGoldrick. And Senior Center Development Committee: Glenn Pratt, Bob Jordan, Paul Kierce, and Gary Adams.

And last, but certainly not least I want to thank each of you. It has been your words of encouragement, letters of support, financial and in-kind donations, attendance at Town Meetings and outreach to elected officials that have directly contributed to where we are today.

We now have a short road ahead of us to complete the picture and bring Cohasset's seniors to a state-of-the-art facility designed and built for them. Keep sharing with your friends and neighbors the reasons why you are supporting Cohasset's seniors. Consider making a financial gift if you have not done so already. Reach out to the Town Manager and Selectmen to let them know you support moving Cohasset Elder Affairs to the new Cohasset Senior Center.

I am looking forward to working with you and our town leaders to expedite moving Cohasset Elder Affairs to their new home and filling a now dark building with all of that bustling joy and promise we saw last Sunday.

Thank you again and Wow! Wow! Wow!

Marita Carpenter is President of the Social Service League of Cohasset.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Making a difference

I would like to extend a sincere thank you on behalf of the seniors who received support from the Cohasset PSO for Make a Difference Day recently. Over 50 volunteers generously gave of their time to clean yards and help winterize homes for elder residents no longer able to complete the work themselves.

We are grateful for the support this dedicated group provides each year, and want to thank the PSO as well as this year's participants, who yet again demonstrated that Cohasset is filled with caring student/families.

— Nancy Lafauce, Assistant Director, Cohasset Elder Affairs

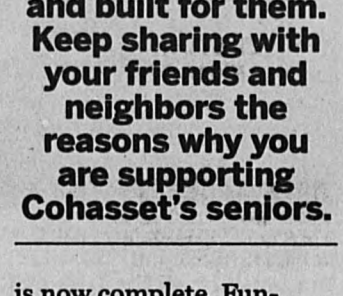
GROWING ON THE FARM

Let us entertain, sustain you



JON BELBER

The rake leans lazily behind the garbage can in a dark corner of the cellar. The push mower, a bit rusty, barely has the wherewithall to roll anymore. The thrill of a backpack leaf blower allows for greater mobility and more efficiency, when tackling a large lawn of colorful, windswept leaves.

Cut wood from local pine (perhaps removed for a new housing development) can hold soil better than gathered rocks from the field, rocks that could have blocked roots of plants. A bale of straw from the local feed and grain store, grown perhaps in Canada, covers and warms a bed of recently planted garlic. But so, too, does collected seaweed from unwanted sea shores and sandy beaches.

The seaweed, full of nitrogen and nutrients, can slowly decompose, while still protecting the garlic for its long winter's nap and early March germination. Well-made compost, once turned and dispersed on a garden bed, can offer a lot to reinvigorate the soil, after a long season of growing crops. Scooped and mucked horse and chicken manure also, at this time of year, can go a long way towards invigorating the soil. It helps to have some lovingly cared-for nearby animals who daily provide such amendments.

Seeds saved from sunflower heads, amaranth blooms, radish gone-by, bean pods and even rotting tomatoes can help us teach from where seeds come and have some ready for next year. Carefully dug up dahlia and gladiola tubers and bulbs, if well-stored and remembered, will be a spring treat to plant again next year.

The bucket on the tractor can haul more items than a two-wheeled wheelbarrow, but to what end? So, too, a tractor can till a field faster than six high school students with garden forks. But what sustains us and our planet, if we depend entirely on machinery, international or local oil and gas? The shortcuts to farming are essential for a busy farmer and many a hardworking parent who seeks to get that weekend chore accomplished.

It does pay off to have a smart phone and camera that can photograph a bad bug or a leaf rot in the field and to then trot back to the office to match it up with the all knowing Internet, so as to better grow organic produce that feeds us and sustains our web of life. Little acts of sustainability, mentioned here, can be beneficial for physical activity, our pocket books and wallets and our peace of mind, not to mention the piece of mind that enjoys quiet on a Sunday afternoon as opposed to leaf blowing parades.

Many kind acts took place recently on the farm to grow and sustain a new farm garden for students at the South Shore Educational Collaborative. Seaweed was hauled by wheelbarrow. Compost was carried by bucket and spread by hand, around the still burgeoning chard. An unused section of goat fence was stapled and nailed to upright ancient cedar posts. An old, idle compost bin was re-established by two green committee high schoolers, so as new old plants can be added. The tired, yet bountiful tomato plants were pulled and the bed was newly hand-tilled and turned and bordered with nearby rocks. The rakes that hang in a prominent spot in the tool shed are easy to get to and use for the remaining leaves yet to fall.

The bucket on the tractor can haul more items than a two-wheeled wheelbarrow, but to what end? So, too, a tractor can till a field faster than six high school students with garden forks. But what sustains us and our planet, if we depend entirely on machinery, international or local oil and gas?

And after all that work, many were ready for a crunchy kale salad from the garden and a chair to sit for a moment, reflect and feel part of a sustainable effort.

Summer lawn irrigation strains water systems

By Deborah Cook

Even if droughts don't occur as predicted, shouldn't we be planning ahead so that we make sure we have water reserves in case they do?

In late September, the South Shore was declared officially as being in a moderate drought.

Cohasset reservoirs were 43.5 percent full, the lowest level since January, 2007. Hingham was well below the 30-year average for precipitation, receiving about half its normal rainfall, and the Weir River was dry. In Scituate, you only had to drive by the reservoir on Route 3A to see how bad things were.

Fortunately, recently rains have come, easing the situation. However, climatologists predict that weather will become more extreme and droughts will become a more common occurrence in the future. Even if droughts don't occur as predicted, shouldn't we be planning ahead so that we make sure we have water reserves in case they do?

Summer droughts in fact take a real toll on the environment. For the most part we have enough water in our state except in the summer. Ironically when the droughts occur, water consumption in most towns doubles, putting many towns at or above their safe yield – the amount of water towns are allowed to withdraw from their reservoirs and wells.

The huge amount of water used in the summer strains even the most efficient water systems. More electricity, chemicals and manpower are required to treat the huge amount of water being processed; the distribution system can max out, even springing leaks; but the biggest problem is that reservoirs are being drained and wells are being tapped out. The ultimate consequence of drained reservoirs and tapped out wells is that streams go dry, exacting a terrible toll on the river ecosystem. Herring, which have spawned in the reservoirs during the summer can't get back to the ocean, and species dependent on a steady flow of water are threatened.

So what is causing this vast consumption of water in summer? You probably guessed it – lawn irrigation. Lawn irrigation systems are voracious water users. A home with an irrigation system can use more than two- to four-times the amount of water as a home without one. To put that in perspective a few startling statistics – watering 1 inch of water per week, the recommended amount, over just 5,000 square feet consumes 3,120 gallons – enough to fill a small fuel oil truck. A water conserving home only uses less than 65 gallons per person per day.

Some will say the answer to water shortages is to find a new water source by drilling a new well or even build a desalination plant. The reality is that even if there are sites to drill wells or build desalination plants, the costs would be enormous.

According to the American Chemical Society, the average cost to turn one acre-foot – about 325,000 gallons – of salt water into fresh water ranges from $800 to $1,400 about three times as much as running a conventional water treatment plant. The upfront costs of permitting, siting and building a plant are of course extremely expensive, but people don't realize that the energy required to run a plant that pushes water through a reverse osmosis membrane to clean it is prohibitively expensive, and then there are the environmental impacts – what to do with the salty brine that is removed from the water. In study after study, desalination is a last resort for a water source.

Drilling new wells, at least on the South Shore, is also extremely impractical. Finding new places to drill within the boundaries of our mostly built out towns is highly unlikely, many towns have looked, but even if a well site could be found, the cost of acquiring the land, including a water protection zone around the well, permitting, and drilling the well would be well over a million dollars.

This brings us back to the most effective solution of all when looking for new water sources, and that is to use what we already have efficiently and effectively. If we conserve, we can keep more water in our reservoirs and wells, making more water available during drought conditions – and avoid building more extremely costly infrastructure to meet this seasonal demand – one that is not part of the public health and safety mission that is required of our water suppliers.

Clearly, the place to start is with water conservation and particularly with the largest consumptive use – lawn irrigation. Putting large quantities of drinkable water on our lawns just doesn't make economic or common sense. We don't have a water supply problem, we have a water use problem.

Giving thanks this time of year

JOHN MCSHEFFREY

My second favorite part of Thanksgiving might be listening to Alice's Restaurant at noon time or perhaps watching a football game or two. I also don't mind the desserts, but most of all it's the ability to give thanks.

Thanksgiving may very well be my favorite holiday of the year; that is unless we count Christmas Eve as a holiday. However, there was a time that I truly disliked Thanksgiving. When I was a kid, Thanksgiving meant getting dressed up, putting up with some crazy relatives (what, you don't have any crazy relatives?) and eating a meal that I wasn't too fond of. Today, that's totally flipped. We no longer get too dressed up, the crazy relatives have drifted off and Thanksgiving dinner is now near the top of my favorite meals to have. Oh the joys of growing up.

Without a doubt, what I appreciate most about Thanksgiving is the simple premise of being able to give thanks for those things that I am grateful for. My second favorite part of Thanksgiving might be listening to Alice's Restaurant at noon time or perhaps watching a football game or two. I also don't mind the desserts, but most of all it's the ability to give thanks.

While my list is quite long, I'd like to share a half a dozen random things I am thankful for.

■ I am thankful for the incredible medical knowledge here in the Boston area. It's easy for us to take this privilege for granted, but we are extraordinarily lucky to have some of the greatest medical minds in the world right here in Boston. Specifically, I'm thankful for Dr. Pinney, the team at Cohasset Pediatrics and the brilliant minds at the Joslin Diabetes Center for all of their help over the past year. Combine their dedication and my daughter's strength and I indeed one grateful soul.

■ I am thankful for kindness. From the simple act of holding a door for a stranger to all the hard work people do in supporting great charities such as the food pantry; acts of kindness are part of life's foundation. Speaking of the food pantry, I am sure they could use your help this holiday season. Encourage kids to do a neighborhood food drive in the upcoming weeks, it'll mean so much for so many.

■ I am thankful for having had the opportunity to have coached over the years. I'll be the first to tell you that when it comes to the X's and O's of baseball and basketball there are many more who are far greater skilled than I. However, there are few who have enjoyed the give and take and the opportunity to encourage and support so many great kids as much as I have. Having had the chance to be called coach has been a true pleasure and honor.

■ I am thankful for every second my kids and parents get to spend together. Watching the happiness they all bring to each other is beyond words fulfilling. From breakfasts at Toast, to spur of the moment sleep-overs, to ball games, to a simple phone conversation every second is a lifelong treasure. We moved to Cohasset in 2007 in part to be closer to my parents in Hingham and it's been greater than we could have ever imagined.

■ I am thankful for Facebook. Yes, that time sapping site is something I am thankful for. I truly understand all the naysayers but the pleasure I have had from reconnecting with friends from the past, staying in touch with friends from the present and using it as a key news source dramatically overshadows the downside. Three great Cohasset focused pages on Facebook that I recommend you check out; The Cohasset Police Department, the Cohasset Mariner and Around Town Cohasset News, Events and Business Shout-Outs.

■ I am thankful for Charlie Guarente and the team at the Cohasset transfer station. The job those guys do is incredible. I hope they all have a great Thanksgiving and want to let them know that I have them in the crosshairs for a future article.

Okay, I know I said six, but here's one more. I am thankful for my wife's apple cranberry stuffing and the amazing Thanksgiving dinner she prepares. I know that this may seem like sucking up but it's not, her ability to prepare a Thanksgiving dinner is amazing ... and yes I do all the dishes. For the record, it would be sucking up if I had included being thankful for her amazing whoopie pies (yours too Jenni!).

As always, thanks for reading; even those of you who do so rolling your eyes. May you and your family have a healthy and happy Thanksgiving.

MEETING

This will allow the Dept. of Public Works (DPW) to purchase a new pick-up truck with a plow to replace an out-of-service truck that "finally rusted out," said Capital Budget chairman Jack Keniley. The new truck costs $41,120.

Another $7,020.17 was approved to complete funding for a dump truck that was approved at the April 2014 Annual Town Meeting. Special Town Meeting also approved repurposing $14,168 from a prior capital allocation to purchase mobile radios for police cruisers.

Article 4, asking for money to be added to the town stabilization funds, won another unanimous vote: $200,000 is going into the Other Post-Employment Benefits (OPEB) liability trust fund; $300,000 will go into the town stabilization fund. These monies will come from $500,000 in Free Cash, which is certified by the state Department of Revenue (DOR) and includes the town's remaining unrestricted funds from the previous fiscal year operating budget.

Advisory Committee chairman Peter Pescatore explained why adding money to stabilization is important, particularly concerning OPEB. Currently, Cohasset is on the hook for $31 million in unfunded liability to cover retired municipal employees' healthcare benefits "over the lifetime for all of the retirees," said Pescatore. "We pay $1.2 million in premiums every year," which "leaves $1.8 million unpaid."

Adding $200,000 to the trust fund brings it up to $874,000 to put toward this liability; however, Pescatore added, "This bill's going to come due someday... we have to make structural changes at the front end of the pipeline" and "try and find non-painful, or at least less painful ways for us to start changing the inputs in that liability."

Meanwhile, adding $300,000 to the town's general stabilization fund brings that account up to $2.5 million, said Pescatore, which is around 6 percent of the town's revenue. While this is good for future unplanned costs, the Advisory chair said, "At some point we need to think about how much is enough."

Town Meeting voters continued to be in a generous mood, approving $225,000 from the general fund for one-time costs, including:

- $100,000 for road repairs and maintenance projects;
- $50,000 for town facilities projects and equipment;
- $30,000 for streetlights expenses;
- $15,000 for hiring consultants to analyze departmental and program space needs;

And $30,000 for short-term space and equipment rentals "including but not limited to elder affairs" (see related story).

With little to no discussion, voters also approved:

- Article 6 to fund a due diligence study for the new Senior Center;
- A $100,000 transfer from the Water Department capital stabilization fund to put toward the department's 2015 debt service (Article 7);
- Sewer commission transfers, including $68,244 from retained earnings to the sewer betterment debt stabilization fund (Article 9);
- Article 10, to establish an Elder Affairs revolving fund;
- Amendments to the town's personnel bylaw, in order to bring it into conformance with the Town Manager Act (Article 12);
- And a zoning bylaw amendment to expand the Highway Business District Area east of Chief Justice Cushing Highway by 2.86 acres.
- Article 11, which authorized bonding $1,191,400 for Bound Brook Dam repairs, was briefly discussed before Town Meeting passed it unanimously. Pescatore explained that the repair is crucial, and the town can afford it.

"The debt service is $51,000 a year; it's easily accommodated in our current cash flow," said Pescatore, adding that "there are contingencies in the estimate for things that go bang in the night."

Tom Gruber, Pond Street, urged his fellow voters to approve the article, saying of the dam, "It's been in very dangerous condition for years... Imagine what it would be like if the dam collapsed and you had no access to fire or police; they would have to get to you through Scituate."

Selectman Steve Gaumer clarified that the dam is in no danger of collapsing, however, and has passed inspection; it's the culvert that's in need of repair. "There is no concern about the stability of the dam itself," said Gaumer.

While apparently in a giving mood throughout the night, voters were opposed to paying an un-metered capital recovery charge proposed by the Water Department as an amendment to the department's rules and regulations (see related story).

If approved, the change would have added a $90 quarterly fee for dwellings other than single-family homes, including condominiums, apartments and shops in town. Selectman Karen Quigley suggested an amendment to the original motion, asking for any funds collected from this fee to be applied to the department's debt service, but the motion was defeated, as was the article itself.

After lengthy discussion, Town Meeting approved Article 14, a citizens' petition asking the town to reimburse selectman Martha Gjesteby for legal expenses she incurred while defending herself against an ethics charged filed against her by a previous board of selectmen. In a hand count, 112 voted in favor of footing the over $9000 bill while 51 were against it.

The remaining petitioned articles on the warrant, 15 and 16, concerned leasing the Senior Center and purchasing various items, including furnishings and audiovisual equipment, for the new building. However, since similar expenses were allocated in articles 4 and 6 on the warrant, these final two articles were indefinitely postponed on the Town Meeting floor.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

Beacon Hill Roll Call this week examines the voting records of local representatives on Democratic Gov. Deval Patrick's 87 vetoes during the 2013-2014 session.

A two-thirds vote is required to override a gubernatorial veto. The number of legislators in the House during 2013-2014 fluctuated based on a number of resignations and special elections. In a full 160-member House, there were 131 Democrats and only 29 Republicans. The governor needed the support of 54 representatives to sustain a veto when all 160 representatives voted — and fewer votes if some members were absent or a seat was vacant.

The House overrode all 87 vetoes including 46 that were overridden on unanimous votes. The most support Patrick received on any veto was 35 votes.

Ironically, it was mostly GOP members who voted with the Democratic governor to sustain the vetoes. The number of times each GOP member supported Patrick ranged from a low of 10 to a high of 35 by GOP Minority Leader Bradley Jones (R-North Reading).

The vetoes had little support among Patrick's fellow Democrats. Only nine of the chamber's Democrats voted with Patrick to sustain any vetoes including Rep. Colleen Garry (D-Dracut), the Democrat who gave him the most support, siding with him six times.

PERCENTAGE OF TIMES REPRESENTATIVES SUPPORTED GOV. PATRICK

Here is how local representatives fared in their support of Gov. Patrick on the 87 vetoes.

The percentage next to the representative's name represents the percentage of times he or she supported Patrick's vetoes.

The number in parentheses represents the number of times he or she supported Patrick's vetoes.

DISABLED RETIREES CAN MAKE MORE OUTSIDE MONEY (S 2343) - The House approved a Senate-approved measure increasing from $5,000 to $15,000 the maximum a disabled state employee can earn outside of his or her disability benefit.

Supporters said the cap has not been raised since 1982. They argued the $5,000 figure is no longer reasonable and must be changed.

The bill still needs additional approval by both branches before it goes to the governor's desk.

DAVID F. MARCELLI LAW (H 4378) - A law that prohibits any body part or organ from being retained following an autopsy without consent from the deceased's next of kin took effect on November 6. The law does allow retention of the organ if it is being kept for the purpose of determining the cause of death.

The measure was filed on behalf of Cathie and Donald Marcelli, whose 18-month-old son David died suddenly in 1996. David's organs were retained without his parents' knowledge or permission following a hospital autopsy.

Supporters say the family suffered untold anguish when they had to bury the body parts four months after David's death.

CHILDREN OF POLICE AND FIREFIGHTERS (H 2222) - November 6 is the day that a new law went into effect allowing a child of a corrections officer killed or permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty to receive preference in his or her placement on all entry-level police officer, firefighter and corrections officer eligible lists. Current law gives this preference only to police officers and firefighters. The applicant must also pass the required written, medical and physical examinations.

TAX AMNESTY RAISES $39 MILLION PLUS - The Department of Revenue (DOR) announced that during the two-month tax amnesty program from September 1 to October 31, the state collected just over $39 million from 49,000 taxpayers. The tax amnesty program, approved by the Legislature and signed by Gov. Patrick several months ago, waived the penalty for unpaid taxes if you received a "Tax Amnesty Notice" from DOR and paid the full amount of tax and interest due by October 31, 2014.

MAKE IT EASIER FOR CITIES AND TOWNS TO FUND COLLECTION PROCESS FOR TAX TITLE FORECLOSURES (S 2298) - The House approved a bill that would allow Massachusetts cities and towns to establish a revolving fund into which legal and administrative fees and charges recovered during legal proceedings for tax title foreclosures would be deposited. The municipality could then use the money directly to pay for the necessary expenses the community incurs during the collection process. Current law places the funds into the community's General Fund. The fund could be created only in cities and towns that receive local approval to do so through passage of a by-law or by a vote of the town meeting or city council.

Supporters said this new fund would make collections easier by providing a dedicated source of funding without the problems and delays that come with having to get the money from the General Fund.

WEBSITE FOR GOVERNOR-ELECT BAKER'S TRANSITION - Governor-Elect Charlie Baker announced the creation of a website for his transition to the governor's office. The site includes a resume upload tool for citizens who want to apply for a job with the new administration. Communications Director Tim Buckley said, "Building a strong, experienced, and bipartisan team is the top priority ... our goal is to cast a wide net for qualified applicants. We encourage anyone interested in joining the Baker/Polito Administration to use this online resource to contact us." The website is www.begreatma.com

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Voters OK Gjesteby legal bill

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

"It does set a precedent, maybe, but one in my opinion we need to set," selectman Karen Quigley said of Town Meeting's decision to pay for legal expenses incurred by a sitting selectman.

Voters at Monday's Special Town Meeting (STM) were in favor of taking on the over $9000 bill to reimburse selectman Martha Gjesteby for money she spent defending herself against a conflict of interest complaint filed against her by the then board of selectmen in January 2013, after she forwarded a confidential email to another citizen. Gjesteby later filed an Open Meeting Law violation against the rest of the board; the State Ethics Commission ruled to take no further action.

Tom Gruber, Pond Street, filed a citizens petition earlier this fall asking for STM to approve the town paying Gjesteby back the $9226.52 she spent on legal counsel. The petition, which was included in the STM warrant as Article 14, garnered over 100 signatures.

Gruber claimed that Gjesteby was "criminally, illegally charged" by the selectmen in an executive session that violated the state's Open Meeting Law. "It was a double whammy," said Gruber.

Since the state chose not to take action against Gjesteby for the selectmen's complaint, Gruber argued that the town should pay the bill, not her.

"It's only equitable that Martha receive a reimbursement for her out of pocket expenses," said Gruber, adding that something like this "could conceivably happen to any volunteer official."

Russ Bonetti, chairman of the Community Preservation Committee, agreed that "this could happen to anybody on any committee in this town," and by not reimbursing Gjesteby "could have a stifling effect on people volunteering in the future."

Furthermore, if Gjesteby were truly at fault in the first place, Bonetti argued that the Attorney General's office "would go after it." Anyone proven innocent "should not have to bear the burden to pay for this," Bonetti concluded.

Francis Collins, South Main St., called Gjesteby "an exemplary member of this town," and the fact that Gjesteby had to hire an attorney to defend herself against the board she was serving on "disgusting."

However, David Dugan of Black Rock Road, did not think Cohasset citizens should have to foot the bill that "one individual ran up."

"It feels like a feud between individuals we're all being asked to pay for," said Dugan. "It sets a bad precedent."

Quigley said later in the meeting that if that's the case, it's a precedent she thinks should be set. Noting that an Advisory Committee member said the incident "happened in dark history, and should be left there," Quigley said, "Those who ignore history are doomed to repeat it."

Ray Kasperowicz, South Main St., called it "a unique situation with mitigating circumstances," and the town agreeing to pay the bill would be a "very important milestone."

Kasperowicz said that Gjsesteby went through something that no public official should have to endure, including "badgering, harassment" and being told to resign. "It should never ever happen again," he concluded.

Paul Carlson, Old Coach Rd., who was selectmen chair "during this episode," noted that the email Gjesteby sent out was "protected under attorney-client privilege" and said that perhaps the State Ethics Commission opted out of taking action because "the release was a first offense, and she was new to the board.

"However, there's a different between 'no action' and exoneration," said Carlson.

Leland Jenkins, another former selectman, wanted to focus on the charge against Gjesteby. "Did she or did she not send confidential information over her computer?" he asked on the Town Meeting floor. Jenkins wondered where the $9200 in legal expenses came from if the matter was so swiftly dismissed.

Chartis Tebbetts, Jerusalem Rd., one of the petitioners, said that Gjesteby did not ask anyone to start a petition for her. "Some of us felt it was really important to state that we have high regard for people who serve this town in an elected or appointed capacity... even though Martha Gjesteby never said she wanted this done, we should pay this bill she incurred to protect herself."

After officials on both the selectmen and Advisory boards asked for an itemized bill, on Monday Gjesteby provided a redacted copy, along with a cover letter requesting reimbursement of money she spent "while performing [her] official duties as a selectman."

Town Moderator Dan Evans explained to STM voters that based on case law presented by Town Counsel Paul DeRensis, the matter could be voted on with a majority vote. In a hand count, 112 voters were in favor of the reimbursement, while 51 voted against it.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Senior Center study, rental pass

Elder Affairs revolving fund approved

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Now that Cohasset has a brand new Senior Center, it's time for the town to figure out how – and when – to get it up and running.

Senior Center (91 Sohier Street) and Elder Affairs issues were front and center during the Monday, Nov. 17 Special Town Meeting (STM). Voters approved three warrant articles that concern renting and occupying the center, as well as funding future program needs.

Construction on the 8000 square-foot Senior Center was completed earlier this month; an open house on Sunday, Nov. 16 fetched around 200 visitors. The state-of-the-art building cost $3.7 million, with $2 million funded by the Cohasset Social Service League (SSL), which is spearheading the project, and $1.2 million from community donations and pledges. According to the SSL, another $500,000 is needed to complete the project.

The SSL and Elder Affairs filed citizens petitions for the STM warrant asking for the town to staff the center and fund program and equipment needs for the new building. The Board of Selectmen ended up creating their own article to fund a due diligence study that would look into occupying the space in the Fiscal Year 2016 budget cycle, which starts on July 1, 2015. This would push the matter to the spring's Annual Town Meeting, in concurrence with the town's typical budget cycle.

While the Elder Affairs citizens petitions (Articles 15 and 16) were indefinitely postponed on the Town Meeting floor, three other articles took action on the center, including Article 5, which allocated $30,000 for potentially renting the facility from the SSL. Article 6 on the warrant authorized a due diligence study of up to $20,000 to review short-term and long-term costs of occupying the center, while Article 10 established a $15,000 Elder Affairs revolving fund for program costs.

Both the due diligence study and revolving fund passed unanimously without discussion. However, there were questions, and a proposed amendment, on Article 5 before it ultimately passed.

Selectman Karen Quigley proposed amending the article to state that the $30,000 to rent the building could be expended by the Town Manager only after Board of Selectmen approval.

Quigley said the reason she was proposing this amendment was in case Article 6, the due diligence study, failed, this would keep funds from being expended on the Senior Center without selectmen oversight.

Paul Kierce, chairman of the Council on Elder Affairs, wondered why the town manger would need selectmen approval "to be able to rent space from time to time for different events throughout the year, if necessary."

Quigley noted that over the past several weeks, the selectmen have had "negotiations and a great deal of discussion on this," and should Article 6 have failed, her suggested provision would "keep the board of selectmen in the loop."

Kierce said that he would rather keep the due diligence study and space rental "as two separate items."

Article 6 "addresses something completely different," said Kierce, "looking at the value and expenses of a new senior center," whereas Article 5 concerned simply renting an available space.

"The facility at 91 Sohier Street is exactly that right now – a facility available for use to people from the town or South Shore area," Kierce said. "It's no different than renting the Lightkeepers Inn or Atlantica, or anything else in town."

Fran Collins, South Main Street, said he wanted more information on what, exactly, the $30,000 "would be directed to," when the town already has a senior center in the South Shore Community Center, and "quite a few spaces in town" to rent.

Town Manager Chris Senior said that it would cover renting the new Senior Center, "among other potential things." However, this was contingent on Article 6 passing.

If Town Meeting approved the due diligence study, said Senior, "and the study is completed... it would allow flexibility to do limited use at 91 Sohier Street," adding that the town is currently on a "month to month lease" at the South Shore Community Center for Elder Affairs usage, which has not yet been "renegotiated."

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said that she questioned the amendment requiring the town manager "to get approval on another request" from the selectmen, believing that Cohasset's Town Manager Act (TMA) gives Senior "authority as chief procurement officer to go ahead and utilize the budget items for what he feels are in the best interest of the town."

Kennedy asked Town Counsel Paul DeRensis to opine on the matter; he interpreted the amendment as requiring "oversight of the board of selectmen rather than nickel and dime" approval of the $30,000.

Town Moderator Dan Evans said that he interpreted this to mean that renting the facility "would be permissible under the Town Manager Act."

Town Meeting did not approve the motion to amend the article, but rather approved the article overall, meaning that Senior can authorize the town renting the Senior Center from the SSL.

Voters later approved funding the due diligence study for $20,000 and an Elder Affairs revolving fund of $15,000 for programming and services.

Cohasset boys soccer battles in 2-1 loss to Archbishop Williams

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

A year ago, the Cohasset boys soccer team made it to the MIAA Division 4 State Championship game.

A year later, after a bit of a slow start, the Skippers powered through the rest of the season, winning the South Shore League Small School championship along the way.

Unfortunately, a return to the State Championship game was stalled on Sunday with a 2-1 loss to Archbishop Williams in a defensive battle at Taunton High School.

The Skippers played well, especially goalie Pat Federle, who had a few highlight-reel type saves, one that led directly to Cohasset's lone goal, on a breakaway by Sam Morris just seconds after Federle stopped a penalty kick by Sean Keenan.

Morris' goal tied the game 1-1 in the early part of the second half.

Keenan ended up scoring the game-winner, however, with 3:27 left to play.

The end was tough for Cohasset coach Jim Willis, who told his team to be more aggressive and take more shots during a timeout in the middle of the second half, especially after tying the game.

"It really had the potential to turn the game around," he said. "Pat makes that unbelievable save and we come down and score, boom, boom, boom and all of a sudden you're thinking we've reversed the momentum. Then we had a number of opportunities we just couldn't finish, and when you don't put one away you leave yourselves open to a counter on the other side. In the second half we did a nice job of controlling possession, pushing it up there, limiting their chances, but they just converted on theirs."

Willis agreed with the thought that Federle was huge, even in the loss.

Championship caliber

Gridders win Div. 6 South Sectional title

Just like in last year's Division 6 South Sectional football final, Cohasset and Millis/Hopedale squared off for the championship.

And just like last year, Cohasset came out on top after a tightly contested battle, this time by a 20-12 score.

"It was a very close game," said Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw. "In the second half, our defense made a small adjustment and was able to shut them out, which was massive."

An interception in the end zone with 52 seconds left on the clock gave the No. 6 Skippers (8-2) the opportunity to bleed the clock and secure their second straight title.

Cohasset advances to Saturday's state semifinal against Cathedral (8-1).

FOOTBALL STATE SEMIFINAL

Skippers are ready for the challenge

State Semifinals Saturday

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset football team continues to take care of business, and that business-like approach has the Skippers set to play Cathedral on Saturday morning at Lowell's Cawley Stadium in the Div. 6 State Semifinal.

The Skippers qualified for the game with a 20-12 win over Millis on Friday night.

So far, so good.

As they head into the last games of the season, things are looking good, and the team has been able to stay healthy and could get an extra boost down the line.

"The boys are feeling pretty good right now," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "We are relatively healthy. Cole Kissick practiced for the first time yesterday, and he is making progress with each day."

Should Kissick return, it would give the Skippers yet another weapon in a powerful arsenal.

With the healthy outlook, Afanasiw feels his team matches up well with Cathedral – especially in the numbers game.

"Cathedral only had 19 players in uniform at their last game, so they are not very deep," Afanasiw said. "But they do have several big-time players and athletes. They're very similar to St. Clement last year, but with a bit different approach."

For the Skippers to win, Afanasiw knows there are keys.

"As usual we will need to improve on our tackling to make sure no one breaks a big play and offensively we'll need to move the chains to try and keep their high-octane offense off the field," he said.

One thing that works for Afanasiw is the opportunity to play football without a long break between games.

"I like not having this week as a bye week," he said. "There is nothing more frustrating than having too much time between games...so having to play on Thursday is actually a blessing in disguise for me.

The Skippers had some outstanding performances in the win over Millis.

"Last week versus Millis, offensively, Danny Axelson had a great game at quarterback," Afanasiw said. "He threw for close to 200 yards. Our running back combo of Tim Gillis and Nick Hall did a very good job at putting a beating on their quarterback/defensive end Matt Fogarty. He was not the same player in the fourth quarter as he was in the first."

On the other side, Afanasiw was pleased with the defensive effort.

"Defensively Matt Froio, Liam Lynch, Jack Donohue and Steven Iantosca led the way with very physical and disciplined play," he said. "As a unit we had several fourth-and short stops that forced Millis to turn the ball over on downs. Nick Hall's interception on the last play of the game was also quite nice."

Afanasiw said the plan for the next few games is simple.

"Over the next few games, we are simply looking to minimize mistakes, and really continue to improve, and keep playing meaningful games," he said.

Maple Leafs streak extends to eight

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The two hottest teams in the South Coastal Hockey League continued their success in their own respective styles.

The Maple Leafs won their eighth straight game as Joe McCafferty scored four goals and assisted on two others in their 7-2 win over the Black Hawks. Bill McIver of Pembroke, Jeff Gauthier and Mike Bartlett added a goal each while Jim Bristol had four assists and Shawn Malloy added three assists for the Leafs.

Jim Polito and Tony Rota scored the goals for the Black Hawks.

The Saints won their sixth straight game and have allowed four goals in that streak as Glen Falvey recorded his second shutout in the run in a 3-0 win. Jim McNeill, Frank Elwodd and Hanover's Tom Shaughnessy scored the Saints goals.

Jim Donovan of Marshfield scored with 1:48 left to break a 1-1 tie and give the Crusaders a 2-1 Legends Div. win over the Stingers. Mike Simon added a goal and Marshfield's Chris Harrington had two assists and Pembroke's Ken Wingate scored for the Stingers.

Hanover's Drew Cammorata scored with 3:12 left to break a 1-1 tie to give the Sharks a 2-1 win over the Whalers in a Legends Div. game. Mike Valenti of Marshfield also scored for the Sharks and Harry Mathews of Duxbury scored for the Whalers.

Pembroke's Bob McCabe scored his third goal of the game with 1:04 left to break a 2-2 tie and give the Canadiens a 3-2 Classics Div. win over the Bruins. Tom Smith of Marshfield set up two of the McCabe goals while Mike Fay had a goal and an assist and Pembroke's Tom Hickie also scored for the Bruins.

Bob Sideropoulos and Lou Sideropoulos both scored two goals and assisted on two others for the Rangers in their Classics Div. 6-4 win over the Red Wings. John Sances added a goal and two assists and Chad Sullivan had a goal for the Rangers.

Pembroke's Brian Hurcombe scored three goals, Pat Burke scored a goal and Hanover's Pete DelPrete had four assists for the Red Wings.

That game is at 11 a.m. at Cawley Stadium in Lowell.

Cohasset was the Div. 6 state runner-up last year.

No. 4 Millis/Hopedale (7-3) actually got on the board first, when star junior running back Josh Pierre-Charles went 27 yards for a touchdown. Millis led 6-0 with 7:50 left in the first half.

Just over a minute later, Cohasset junior quarterback Daniel Axelson hooked up with senior wide receiver Adam Benson for a 53-yard touchdown. The ball was underthrown, and after two Millis defenders ran into each other, Benson had a clear path down the sideline.

With the game tied, 6-6, late in the first half, Millis/Hopedale senior quarterback Matt Fogarty found sophomore wide receiver Brian Espanet for a 17-yards touchdown.

The two-point conversion attempt failed, so the Mohawks held a 12-6 advantage with 67 seconds until the break.

The weather may have been bitter cold, but the fourth quarter was heated.

With 8:33 remaining, junior running back Nick Hall punched it in from a yard out. Henry Butenschoen's kick gave Cohasset a 13-12 lead.

The Skippers' defense later made a monster fourth-down stop, stuffing Pierre-Charles at the Mohawks' 45 and getting the ball back with just over 5 minutes to play.

"The kids have been playing well for the last month and a half," said Afanasiw. "This is the most points we've given up in the last seven games."

Cohasset had to punt the ball away with 4:25 on the clock. Millis/Hopedale converted on one fourth down, but couldn't repeat that with 2:23 left.

Skippers senior running back Tim Gillis effectively ended the game on a 15-yard TD run with 1:30 to go.

"It's just a great group of kids," said Afanasiw. "They come to practice and they are as businesslike as I've seen in my 20-plus years of coaching. They execute on Friday nights."

"He tried his best to save the day for us," he said. We didn't come out with the kind of teamwork effort that we've been playing with. He made a couple of unbelievable saves. That 1-0 halftime deficit could have been two or three. He was standing on his head to keep us in it."

Its incredible disappointing. We're all terribly upset. We know we have the talent and ability to win this game. We just didn't put it together today. It's tough. I think at the end when it was 1-1, our kids started playing for overtime a little bit. That's why that last 10 minutes is such a dangerous time. You have one letup and Archbishop Williams came in with a great game. They worked very hard, they defended like crazy. They know us very well. We beat them in the first round last year. They know our best players. They did a really nice job defending them and taking away our strengths and countering whatever they could. They got a couple of nice breaks on the free kick and penalty kick. We didn't get any of those."

Willis also credited Archbishop Williams defense.

"Every single time we brought the ball down here they had six, seven, eight kids across the box,' he said. 'When we had opportunities we just couldn't put it in."

With a number of strong players coming back, Cohasset has the ability to be very good for several years, but Willis knows how special this team was.

"It was a great season, a fantastic season," Willis said. "I told the kids. I know the sophomores and juniors think you get to the South Final game every year. I told them, I know you don't believe me, but you don't get here very often, so relax, enjoy yourselves and have fun."

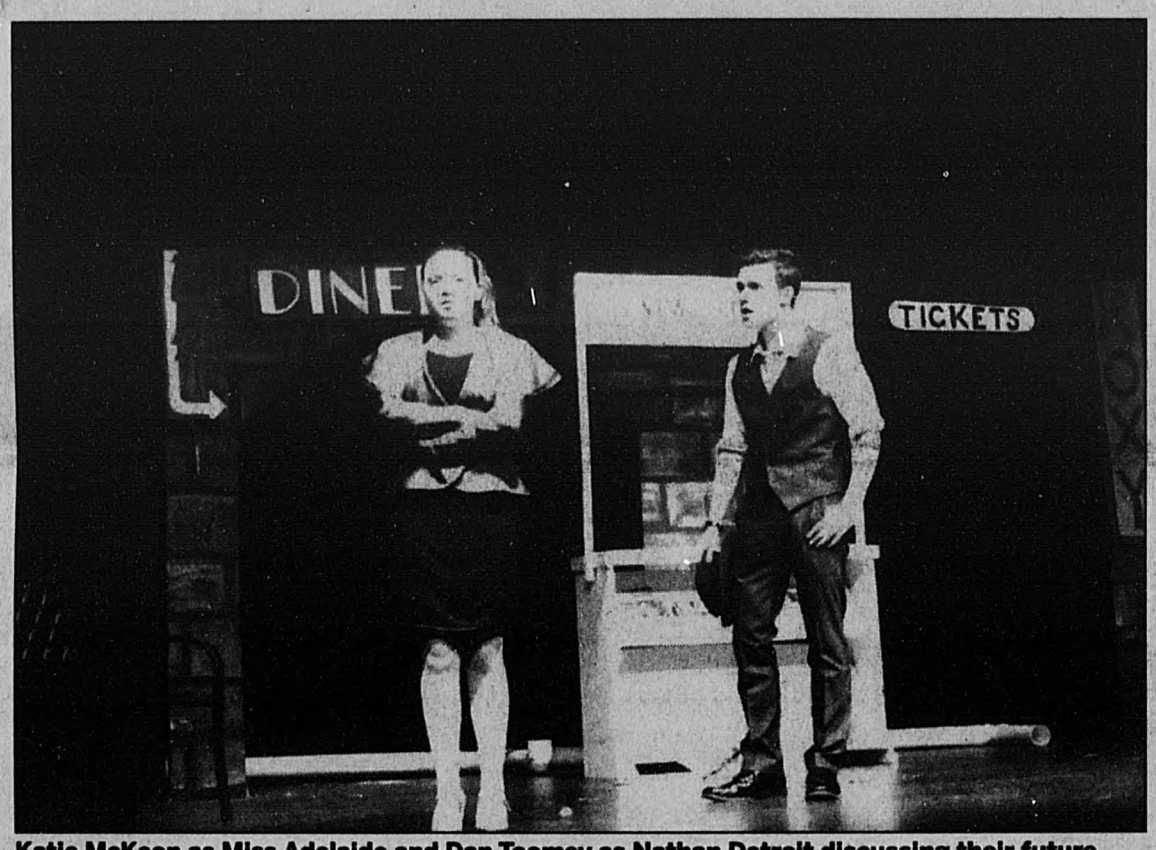
'Guys and Dolls' takes the stage

The Cohasset High School Music Department presents the musical "Guys and Dolls" Dec. 5 to 7, at the Cohasset Middle High School Auditorium.

This production is directed and choreographed by Stephanie Moriarty, head of CHS Bands, and Abigail Arenstam, head of CHS Chorus, with John DeWaal, head of CMS Band and Music, as the technical coordinator, and Steve Biagini, head of Deer Hill Band, conducting the orchestra.

This will be the first production by the Cohasset Music Department to take advantage of important improvements to the lighting and sound equipment in the auditorium that were part of a 2013-14 grant co-funded by the Cohasset Education Fund (CEF), the Cohasset PSO and the South Shore Music Circus to the Theatre/Arts Program. These improvements have allowed for a more energy efficient and overall enjoyable experience in the auditorium. During rehearsal Stephanie Moriarty reminded the cast, that "those are professional style microphones up there. They are going to pick up everything." Stephanie is very pleased with the improvements that have been made, explaining that the lighting and sound experience is "much more balanced."



Katie McKeon as Miss Adelaide and Dan Toomey as Nathan Detroit discussing their future.

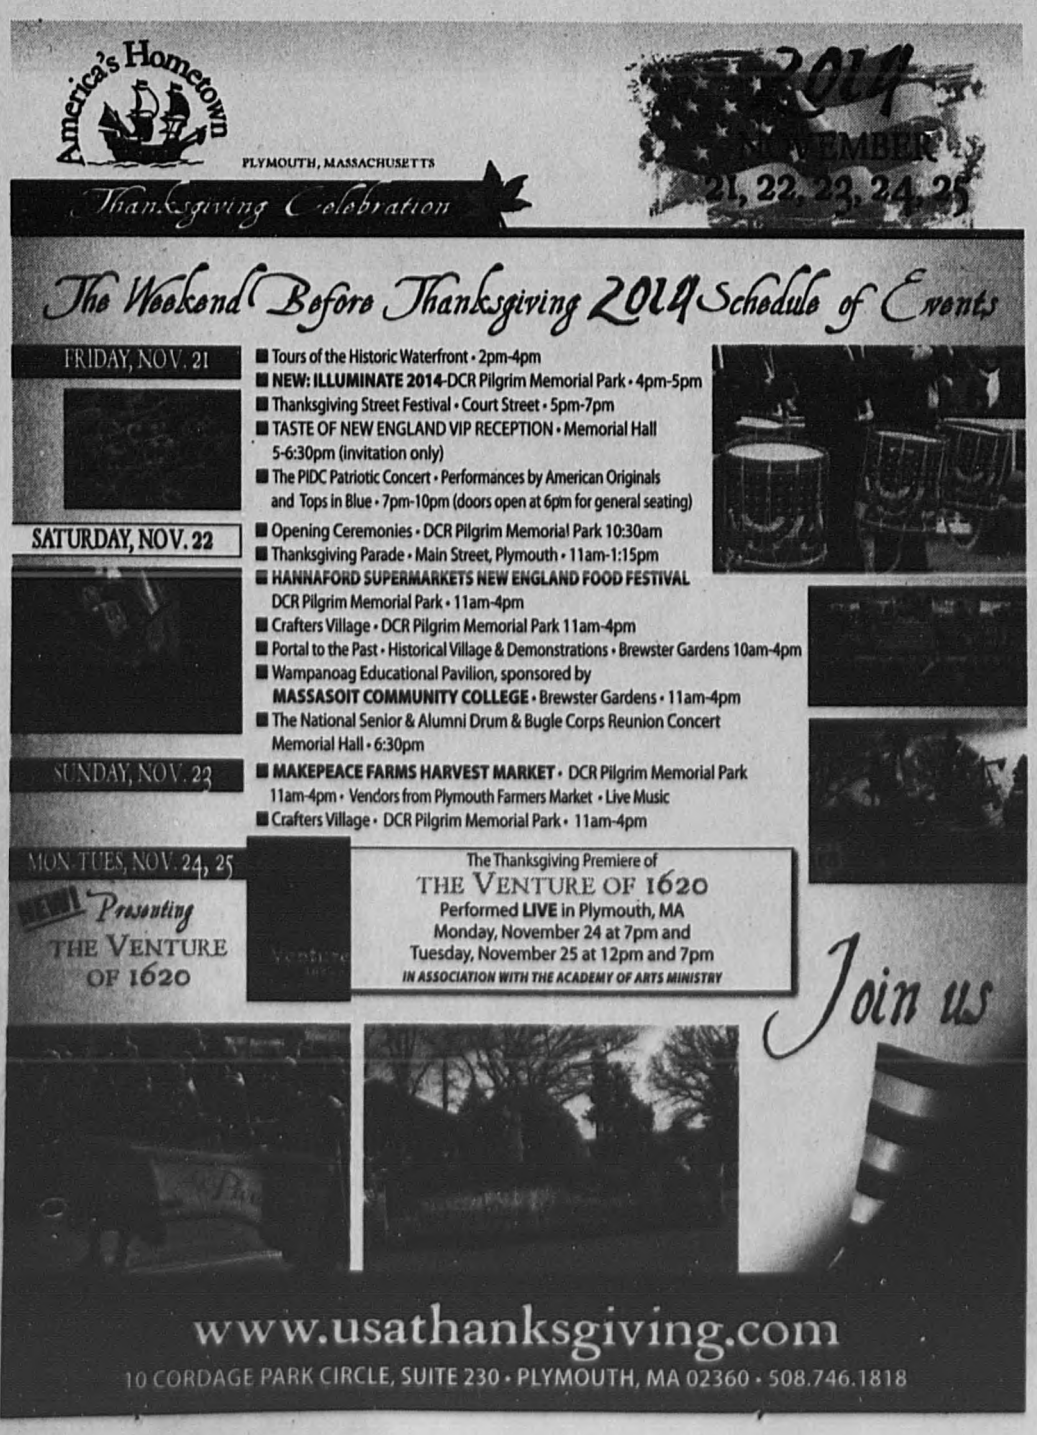
Cohasset High School juniors Luke Norton and Richie Kinscherf are the lighting and sound technicians for "Guys and Dolls," and are regularly sought out for their expertise in all school events held in the auditorium. Luke and Richie have noticed a big difference in the overall quality of the sound and lighting. Luke says, "the new speakers are amazing and help us a lot. It's a huge upgrade for us." Junior, Julia Richardson, head of costumes, explained that previously, "there were dark spots on the stage and places that the mics didn't pick up."

These improvements allow the actors to be better seen and heard and more effectively show off their skills. This is a production that no one will want to miss. There is an incredible amount of both acting and singing talent in this group of high school actors.

"Guys and Dolls" is a Tony Award-winning musical set in Depression era New York City, the story by Damon Runyon and songs by Frank Loesser.

Cohasset High School's production of this romantic comedy casts Evan Canney as Sky Masterson; Dan Toomey as Nathan Detroit; Meghan Considine as Sarah Brown; Katie McKeon as Miss Adelaide; Gambling guys: Jack Cunningham, Max Nakishima, Chris Lydon, Hayes Keniley, Cole Morrison, and Lucas Slater; Lt. Brannigan: Alec Norton; Mission Leaders: Dylan Connolly, Ben Healey, and Sarah Gruber; Mission dolls: Madison Pratt and Emma Humphrey; Hot Box Girls: Madison Hindely; Halle Pratt, Julia Curtain, Clara Baumgarten, Bretagne Gumpel, Maddie Littlejohn, Madison Hagearty, Maggie Seebek, and Caitlin Conrad; Mission Band: Becca Fredey, Margot Robbins, Vivien Littlejohn, and Caroline Kennedy; Waiters: Christine Guinee and Isabel McCarthy. Master of Ceremonies: Mary Lengyel.

All performances will be held in the CMHS Auditorium Dec. 5 and 6, at 7 p.m. Dec. 7, at 2 p.m. Tickets will be available at Buttonwood Books, Paperscapes and at the door for each performance.



Luke Norton and Richie Kinscherf make adjustments to sound and lighting during rehearsal.

Music, theater, song and dance are set to usher in holiday spirit

The holiday season in Boston — and the 'burbs — is steeped in tradition, along with some surprises. Even if you haven't thawed the Thanksgiving turkey yet, it's not too soon to think about Christmas. There's plenty of music, theater, song and dance to usher in seasonal spirit. The forthcoming weeks are packed with festive offerings.

Setting the stage for Christmas

Soaring off the screen and onto the stage is the beloved chestnut "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer: The Musical." The musical version of the classic TV special brings to life favorite characters: Santa and Mrs. Claus, Hermey the Elf, Bumble, the Abominable Snow Monster, Clarice, Yukon Cornelius, and, of course, Rudolph. Tune up the holidays

Celebrate with a sprinkle of pop, jazz and rock

By Ed Symkus
Wicked Local Arts Correspondent

It's (almost) Christmastime in the city, and the suburbs, and all over the place. And there's plenty of seasonal music in the air to keep us warm. This year's offerings range from traditional folk tunes to Yuletide classics done up by rockers to a Jewish take on Tchaikovsky. Here's a taste of what's being presented in clubs and concert halls throughout December.

"The Little Prince" might have turned 70 last year, but the story of an aviator who crashes in the desert and is saved by a child tackles timeless themes. St. John's Holiday Boutique supports Appalachian Service Project

For 13 years now, the Holiday Boutique at St. John's Episcopal Church in Hingham has been offering a selection of juried vendors selling everything from unique jewelry to children's toys, books and games to gifts for men, as well as a chance to visit with Santa 9 a.m. to noon or enjoy lunch or a cup of coffee at a delicious gourmet cafe. Every year, the boutique donates all of the monies collected through the suggested $2 door charge to a different local non-profit. This year, all of the proceeds will support the Appalachian Service Project.

As in the past two years, a group of St. John's youth will join ASP in summer 2015 to help improve the homes and lives of people in rural Appalachia. Sabina Fickenwirth, a St. John's parishioner and currently a freshman at American University, volunteered with ASP for the last two summers and offered some reflections on her experience below:

"We all know that old cliché: the best way to help yourself is to help others. You know it; I know it. I knew it the summer after my junior year, when I first embarked on a little trip called the Appalachian Service Project. Let me set the scene for you. I, being the cynical teenager that I was circa two years ago, would have scoffed at such a sentiment as idealistic rambling. Bah, humbug! Sure, helping others is nice and all, but it's not exactly going to bring on the sort of dramatic, all-enlightening spiritual experiences that Caravaggio occasionally liked to paint. So when I signed up for ASP, I was ready for a week of mildly fulfilling work that would look pretty nice on a college application. Ohh boy, talk about in for penny, in for a pound.

"ASP has been a staple of the Second Congregational Church in Cohasset (which kindly took us newbies under its wing) for a long time, but that fateful year of 2013 when ASP was transplanted into Hingham's own St. John's Church, I wasn't entirely sure what to expect. However, under the peerless leadership of Reverend Gary Ritts and Judy Ritts, I'm pleased to report that all of my concerns immediately proved to be unfounded.

"That first year we went to Washington County, Virginia. We stayed in an elementary school, showered under hosepipe in interestingly constructed cubicles comprised of two-by-fours and tarpaulin, and did some pretty intensive physical labour. All in all it was one of the most exciting and — dare I say it? — rewarding experiences of my life. My work crew was given the task of tearing up a kitchen floor that was literally molding to pieces and laying down a new floor with a little more integrity. The house had no electricity, and we had to string up a Maglite from the ceiling for illumination as we balanced on the floor joists, measuring tricky corners and laying down large slabs of plywood. It was difficult and tiring and one-hundred-percent worth it. This was tangible work; something I could see the end result of. Caravaggio might as well have painted a scene from our project that week because there was a lot of enlightenment, let me tell you. Goodbye, lugubrious teenage cynicism.

"When I returned to ASP this past summer, one of my worries was that I would be unable to reproduce that solid feeling of having made a real difference, but once again I came away from the week knowing that I had made a family's life just that much better. ASP was the first time I really came to understand why so many people around the world dedicate their lives to non-profits and aid organizations. As for me, you can bet your life I'll be back with ASP this coming summer, helping others and hey, as it turns out, helping myself as well."

Jingle Bell Walk is Nov. 28

Santa is Coming!

If you and your family would like to be a part of Santa's arrival in Cohasset Harbor at the Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, November 28th here is your chance!

This year marks the 20th Anniversary of the Jingle Bell Walk-a holiday tradition that kicks off the merriest season of the year. To commemorate this milestone, the SSCC is raffling off an opportunity for a local family to be a part of the event. You and your family will meet Santa personally and accompany he and Mrs. Claus as they journey across Cohasset Harbor, in Santa's boat, arriving at Government Island at 2 p.m. A cheering throng of fans and friends will greet you. Once on dry land, you will be escorted to a waiting hay wagon drawn by Clydesdale Horses, which will lead the parade through the town to the Center. Hot chocolate, coffee, punch and cookies will be waiting for you and the assembled crowd.

There will be holiday carols and the Rusty Skippers Band will be there to provide some wonderful tunes to get everyone into the holiday spirit. Children will be able to create their own special holiday ornament to take home. There will be Open Bowling for all to enjoy.

Bring your cameras because Santa will be available for you to take that special holiday photo. And please enjoy your own Holiday Hayride around the Town Common while listening to the Bells of St. Stephen's play. (Hayride from 3-4 p.m. sponsored by our generous Patrons, Sponsors & Friends of the Center.) Please take the time to stroll the Cohasset Village and visit our local Merchants and do not forget to bid on our Auction Items. For more information about this event and how to purchase the Santa Raffle tickets, please call 781-383-0088 or visit the Main Office at 3 North Main Street in Cohasset or you may go online and purchase the tickets at: southshorecommunitycenter.com. Ticket prices are 1 for $10, 3 for $25.

In the Event of Rain, Santa and friends will arrive at the SSCC Gym at 2 p.m.

Knitting hats for Rosie's Place

Deer Hill students are once again hard at work knitting hats for Rosie's Place, a Boston area homeless shelter.

This knitting project which began 19 years ago, back in 1996, has supplied homeless women and children with more than 3000 hats over the years.

Deer Hill students learn that they can make a difference in a person's life by making something special to keep them warm. The shelter is always very appreciative of our children's efforts, and all finished hats are displayed in the lobby through early December, when they get delivered. The community is also welcome to knit hats and bring them to Deer Hill.

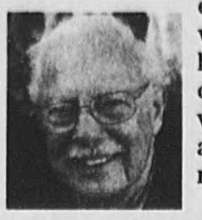
OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Emil M. Carlo



Emil M. Carlo

SCITUATE – Emil M. "Gary" Carlo, 85, of Scituate passed away October 17, 2014, with his family by his side.

He was the beloved husband of Joan E. (Tarricone) Carlo for 56 years; devoted father of Regina Church and her husband Andrew of Cazenovia, N.Y., and Selene Carlo-Eymer and her husband Douglas of Cohasset; cherished grandfather of Foster, Gerrit, Bryce, Taggart and Rebecca. He was predeceased by 5 siblings.

Born in Yonkers, N.Y., and lived in Mamaroneck, N.Y., for much of his life, Gary was the quintessential New Yorker.

Not only did he know every shortcut between his suburban home and the Big Apple's core, he was also familiar with a plethora of tiny ethnic restaurants, as well as neighborhood espresso and pastry shops.

On weekends, he could be found at Coveleigh Club, in Rye, N.Y., where he was an avid tennis player and champion lawn bowler.

In the mid-90s, following a successful career as a Director of Operations in the corporate and medical fields, Gary and Joan retired to Scituate's Minot neighborhood, located within close proximity to their grandchildren and grandnieces. "Gary" and "Dad," was soon replaced with "Gram-pa-Daddy" and later simply "Grampy".

In his new home, he soon transitioned from Knickerbocker to Celtic fan, played golf whenever possible, travelled the world, and habitually calmed his voracious appetite for reading.

In his post-retirement role, as Veterans' Administrator for the town of Scituate, he made use of his own vast Navy experiences, including seeing much of the world from the flight deck of the aircraft carrier Roosevelt; to assist fellow service members and families as they navigated through the challenges of post-military life.

He was a "people person". His thoughtful words, warm smile and clever wit, made an incredible impact on so many lives. Gary was a truly valued member of both his family and his community.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, November 29, at 11 a.m., at St. Anthony's Parish in Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, the family kindly requests that donations be made to either South Shore Hospital Charitable Foundation, 55 Fogg Road, South Weymouth, MA 02190 (in honor of the extraordinary care received from Dr. Schubert and Dr. McClennen), or Foyer of Charity, 74 Hollett Street, Scituate, MA 02066.

Kathleen C. Nagle

Kathleen C. Nagle

SCITUATE – Kathleen Clifford Nagle, 95, of Scituate, passed away on Nov. 10, 2014.

Vibrant, with a wonderful sense of humor, she expressed daily how grateful she was for her family, friends, and the amazing people who cared for her at Sunrise Assisted Living in Cohasset. Known as Kay or Kathleen she was strong, elegant and stylish, able to draw people to her with her positive energy.

Born on Aug. 18, 1919, she grew up in Roslindale and West Roxbury. After high school, she enrolled at Boston Clerical, now the Boston Business School. The school was known by all of the businesses in Boston and around the world because of its high ethics and student achievement. All students had to keep a 90% or above average in order to pass all classes given. Upon graduation, she worked her way up as a civilian in the transportation department of the Army, where she arranged transportation for service men and women to and from their assignments in WW II.

She met Paul Nagle on a blind date on New Year's Eve 1942. Six months later, he shipped out as a junior officer on a Navy destroyer destined for service in the South Pacific during World War II. She wrote him letters every day during the three years that he was gone. They married upon his return in 1945, and subsequently had eight children.

During their 59-year marriage, they lived in New York, North Carolina and Connecticut. In 1972, they moved back to their beloved Scituate, where Kathleen summered in the Minot section of town during her youth. She lived her life with grace, dignity and fun until the very end. Asked by her doctor, shortly before she died, if she needed anything from him. With a twinkle in her eye, she asked, "How about a glass of chardonnay?" Shortly thereafter, in the company of her children and grandchildren, she got her wish.

Mrs. Nagle is daughter of the late Florence (Kelley) and George Clifford, and the sister of the late Rev. Donald Clifford of Scituate, Mass., she was the wife of the late Paul F. Nagle, and the mother of Kathleen Davidoff of Rock Hill, N.Y.; Peter C. Nagle of Kittery Point, Maine; the late Paula Macomber of Cambridge; Clifford Nagle of Guatemala; Nancy O'Connor of Scituate; Bill Nagle of Nyack, N.Y.; Donald Nagle of Scituate; and Christine Nagle of Scituate. She also leaves 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated on Friday, Nov. 14, 2014 at 11:30 a.m. in St. Anthony Church, 10 Summer St., Cohasset, MA. 02025. Visiting hours prior to the Mass on Friday from 10 - 11:30 a.m. in McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 160 So. Main St. (directly across from St. Anthony Church), Cohasset. Level: Hoo Boy!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) While it seems that chaos is taking over, you get everything back to normal, even if it means being more than a little assertive with some people. Expect to hear more job-related news soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Expect to be able to move ahead with your workplace plans now that you have a good idea of what you might have to face. You also can anticipate a welcome change on the home front.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A quieter period settles in, giving you a chance to catch your breath, as well as allowing for more time to handle some important family matters. The arts dominate this weekend. Enjoy them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The frustrations of last week have pretty much played themselves out. You should find things going more smoothly, especially with those all-important personal matters.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Once again, you find a creative way to resolve a pesky problem in short order. However, a matter involving a possible breach of confidence might need a bit more time to check out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Reuniting with an old friend could lead to the sharing of some great new experiences. But be careful you don't find yourself once again being super-critical or overly judgmental.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You should be seeing some positive results following your move toward repairing that unraveling relationship. There might be some setbacks, but staying with it ultimately pays off.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Encouraging a friendlier environment in the home could go a long way to help dissipate anger and resolve problems, especially those affecting children. It won't be easy, but you can do it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A recent act of kindness is beginning to show some unexpected (but very welcome) results. On another note, expect to hear more about a possible move to another locale.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The good news is that the sure-footed Goat can rely on his or her skill to get around obstacles in the workplace. The not-so-good news is that new impediments could turn up later.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A change of pace is welcome but also confusing. Before you make decisions one way or another, be sure you know precisely what it is you're being asked to do.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Don't fret if you don't get the gratitude you think you're owed for doing a nice thing for someone. There might be a good reason for that. In any event, what's important is that you did it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of making the sort of wise decisions that ultimately shed new light on dark situations.
